

Division S – GOVERNMENT, EXCEPT ELSEWHERE CLASSIFIED

Overview of the Division

This Division comprises establishments of the state and local public organs that are engaged in legislative, judicial or administrative affairs in the Diet, courts, administrative organs and their local branch offices and bureaus as well as prefectural government offices, municipal and ward offices, town and village offices and their regional offices and the like.

However, based on differences in marketability, establishments engaged in operations similar to those in industries other than “Government” are classified into their respective industries other than “Government.” For example, such establishments include those of local public enterprises such as transportation, gas and water services, and other establishments engaged in the operation of public sports, such as bicycle racing and horse racing.

Establishments

The definition of establishment in the General Rules refers to an establishment by a single business principal, etc. However, in classifying state and local public organs, an independent organ established in accordance with laws and regulations is treated as a single establishment as a general rule. For example, if multiple organs are located at the same location, each organ is treated as a separate establishment. However, if an organ is located in several remote locations, the organs at each location are treated as separate establishments.

Relationship between “Government, n.e.c.” and other industries

Establishments engaged in the following operations are classified into the relevant industries other than “Government” according to the type of operations they conduct.

- (1) Establishments engaged in the production and distribution of agricultural products (including mulberry, cocoon, and livestock),
- (2) Establishments engaged in the direct control and management of national and public forests and fields,
